

WHAT IS EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS?

The primary objective of the Homemaker Association is to carry out an informal educational program. The program is planned by Homemaker leaders and is designed to provide information to help Homemakers make the best use of all available resources, to provide a better and more meaningful life for themselves and their families.

Crittenden County Extension Homemakers are affiliated with the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture.

Homemakers are your friends, relatives and neighbors working together to improve our do-it-yourself skills. We keep up-to-date on what's happening in our community, our county, our nation and our world. Your future is up to you. The better you are at living with change, the more you'll enjoy a rich satisfying life in the days, months and years ahead.

The Cooperative Extension Service is an off-campus educational arm of the University of Kentucky and Kentucky State University. It was established by Congress with the Smith-Lever Act on May 8, 1914, "To aid in sharing among people of the United States, useful and practical information on subjects relating to agriculture and home economics, and to encourage application of the same." It is one of the world's largest informal educational and developmental organizations. Every county in Kentucky has a local Extension Service.

The term "Cooperative" describes the unique method of financing the Extension Service. A combination of educational programs is available to all people in the state.
